ATTORNEY JOHN O. SPAHR ACCUSES CANTRELL AND SAMUEL MARTIN.

He Has Been Quietly Working on the Some Time-Cantrell Poses as a Knowing Person.

Rufus Cantrell and Samuel Martin were much surprised to learn yesterday afternoon that they would probably soon be called upon to answer to the charge of murdering Doc Lung, a Chinese laundryman, who was killed May 6 of last year. The information leaked out during the day that Attorney John O. Spahr, who is interested in defending one or two of the doctors now under indictment for complicity in grave robbing, was the man who will file affidavits against the ghouls on the charge of murder. Mr. Spahr said yesterday that he and his associates have gathered sufficient evidence to warrant the filing of affidavits against the negroes. These affidavits will not be filed until after all the ghoul cases are disposed of, he said. Mr. Spahr, when questioned as to the character of the evidence, was reticent. He did admit, however, that he was sure Cantrell and Martin knew something of the murder. In answer to a query about a negro killing Doc Lung, Mr. Spahr answered: "If you would make a diligent search of Indiana avenue and especially that part called Bucktown you would y learn that Rufus Cantrell was not Walhalla cafe on the night of the murder, but was in close proximity to the Chinaman's laundry."

Mr. Spahr declined to discuss the accusaions against the negroes, saying that the ases were yet in an immature state and the courts had disposed of the ghoul ases nothing would be done toward chargng the negroes with the murder. He inferred that Cantrell was among the par-ties to the killing on the night of May 6 than a block with several hundred people ties to the killing on the night of May 6 ar, and if Cantrell were quesned by the proper authorities he would alge some startling information. Cantrell was interviewed yesterday afteron by detectives and reporters, and said the statement Mr. Spahr had given out was a surprise to him. "Let them work on that theory," said Cantrell. "I know who is putting up this job, and the very man that is the most interested will probably have to answer to a serious charge before this deal is through. I am willing that they should charge me with that murder. I have sufficient evidence that I can produce to startle this community by the prominence of the white people connected

ECHO OF ALEXANDER TRIAL. Attorney Spahr created a sensation at the recent trial of Dr. Joseph C. Alexander by asking Cantrell what he knew of the Chinese murder. It was hinted during the trial that the ghouls now under arrest knew positively who it was that killed Doc Lung. Cantrell does not deny that he has information regarding the murder, but he will only tell it when the proper time comes. He said that Dr. Frank Wright, of the Eclectic Medical College, was at the with the murder. "Two nights after the murder Dr. Wright called me up over the phone." said Cantroll "and up over the said Cantrell, "and asked me to get the body of the Chinaman for his college. He said it would give his college prestige if the Oriental's body could be ured for dissecting purposes. I told him Chinaman would be buried in Crown Ill, and it would be impossible for us to get it. Dr. Wright said he would pay double the price for the body and asked several times to get it." Cantrell said he fell a victim to the pleadings of Dr. Wright and quit his job as porter at the Walhalla, intending to steal the body of the Chinaman. This conversation over the ephone, Cantrell said, was had in Beck's meat shop, on East Washington street. The information given out by Mr. Spahr was a surprise to the police and detective departments, as none of the members were cognizant of the fact that Spahr was working on the case. Several men interested in search for the real murderers said yesterday that whatever steps Mr. Spahr took in the matter would not influence their side of the case in the least. The police are working on clews they have gained from time to time, but have deferred making arrests, as two of the important people wanted are out of the city and have been absent since a few days after the murder. The olice have knowledge of their whereaeen secured to warrant their indictment the matter will be placed before the grand jury. The parties, they think, will be ar-

Detectives Asch and Manning, who arrested Cantrell and Martin, with the other said yesterday that they had wiedge of the real murderer of Doc ng, but were not in a position now to divulge it, as the murderers are not under arrest. They said they could not discuss the statement made by Spahr.

STATE'S LEGAL BATTLE WITH BIG CORPORATION.

Right of the State to Compel Weekly Payment of Wages Will Be Settled.

BEFORE THE SUPREME COURT

ATTORNEY GENERAL MILLER WILL ARGUE THIS MORNING.

Republic Iron and Steel Company Appellant in Case of Vast Importance-Points at Issue.

Has the State a constitutional right to compel corporations or other employers to pay employes weekly? That is the interesting question which the Supreme Court is called on to decide in the case of the Republic Iron and Steel Company against the State of Indiana, a case which has other girl was Minnie Page, twelve years old, who was arrested late in the afternoon been appealed from the Delaware Circuit Court after the State won its contention in the lower court.

> This morning, before the Supreme Court, a notable array of legal talent will argue the points of law. For the Republic Iron and Steel Company Chambers, Pickens & Moores, Ryan & Thompson, Robert S. Davidson and Frank C. Olive will appear. For the State Attorney General Miller will make his first oral argument.

The case is one that attracts a vast amount of interest. Corporations for a number of years have fought strenuously the right of the State to compel them to pay their men by the week instead of every two weeks or monthly. The State has persistently maintained through several administrations that employes must be paid weekly, and that they should not be submitted to inconvenience or possible danger of losing their pay by longer waits.

The Republic Iron and Steel Company has established a system of bi-weekly payments. A laborer named Haverstick working in the Anderson mills wanted to draw his money by the week. The company refused to grant the privilege. Attorney General Taylor brought a civil action against the company to test the constitutionality of the act of Feb. 28, 1899, which provides, among other things, for the weekly payment of wages. In the first round of the fight the State was victorious, and then the company appealed. The time for oral argument was set for this morning. WIDE INTEREST IN CASE.

The arguments advanced by the company's counsel and which the State will at-The dedicatory services will take place tempt to refute are keenly interesting to Monday, April 6, the forty-first anniversary the legal fraternity, because of the vital of the battle. "The act imposes no valid penalties, because the title of the act mentions none. "The act violates both the federal and Indiana constitutions in the following respect: It deprives a large class of citizens of liberty and property without due process of law, and abridges their privleges and immunities; it withholds from citizens of Indiana and the United States equal protection of the laws, and it impairs the obligation of contracts, by exempting from its terms employes engaged

"It grants to certain citizens and classes of citizens privileges and immunities upon the same terms, shall not equally belong to all citizens. Such men are by no means on an equality under the law, or in business engagements with men who have property or financial backing who wish to borrow money for the common and ordinary uses

"Surely if usury laws can be sustained as a proper exercise of the police power every reason calls for the sustaining and enforcement of laws which put men with only their labor to part with on an equalwith the men who seek to buy it. Within the recollection of counsel in this case the entire force on one of the great city dailies of the city of Indianapolis were months behind in their wages, and an application for pay from poor fellows with families to support, brought only a discharge, with the poor consolation that a judgment in the curts could not be obtained without money, and that its collection, if obtained, would be extremely doubtful. "The history of a railroad only a few miles from Indianapolis shows that its labor was constantly many months in arrears in wages, year after year, and the Appellate Court has had before it, within the

Benjamin McCune, chief of police Brookfield, Mo., while taking a naval deserter through this city last night on the way to Norfolk, Va., lost his prisoner and appeared at the police station a much-worried man. McCune said he was taking Frank Dawson back to the naval station at Norfolk, and when the train reached Alabama street Dawson asked to go to the water cooler for a drink. McCune said he paid but little attention to the man for several minutes. He then turned his mind to Dawson and found that he had left the train when it was passing under the via-

McCune told the story of the man's escape to Sergeant Corrigan and said he hoped the incident would not get into the newspapers. Corrigan asked him his reasons for it, and McCune answered: "Well, if I can keep this matter a secret I will back home and tell them a different story and no one will ever be the wiser." Corrigan laughed at the man and told him the best thing for him to do was to return home and tell a straight story of his loss.

Oliver P. Smith, a retired farmer, seventyseven years old, who lived in Southport, was killed instantly yesterday morning at 11:10 o'clock by the fast train on the Pennsvivania due in Indianapolis at 11:15 o'clock. The train was behind time and was running very fast to make up lost time.

Mr. Smith was crossing the track and failed to hear the approach of the train. He was hard of hearing and his eyesight was poor. The train was speeding along at the rate of about fifty miles an hour pilot decapitated him, and his head was carried for nearly a mile on the pilot be-fore the train could be stopped. MAYOR BOOKWALTER WILL NOT RETURN UNTIL NEXT WEEK.

His Friends Say They Are Not Alarmed at the Situation-Democratic Squabble Subsides.

The friends of Mayor Bookwalter, who is still in Arizona with his brother, are going ahead with their organization in his interest as the nominee of the Republicans for a second term. The mayor is not expected home before the middle of next week, and there is so far no candidate announced against him. The Republicans who are opposed to his nomination assert that nearly one-half of the members of the city central committee are in favor of selecting a new man, and they are now spending their efforts in trying to gain the consent of the man who is deemed by them to be capable of defeating Mayor Bookwalter in the con-

Those opposed to the renomination of Mayor Bookwalter say that their strength is in the heavy Republican wards on the North Side and that if the candidate they hope to annearly four hundred delegates may be elected at the primaries Friday.

The friends of Mayor Bookwalter say they are amply informed as to the situation and that there is not the slightest danger that any candidate can overcome him. No opposition is announced to the renominaion of Charles N. Elliott, city clerk. Should Judge Stubbs become judge of the Juvenile Court Thomas C. Whallon, now city prosecutor in Police Court, and Cass Connaway are mentioned as probable candidates for police judge. Six councilmen at large are also to be nominated. It is expected a number of new candidates for these places on the ticket will appear within the next twenty-four hours.

IN THE DEMOCRATIC CAMP. The Democratic squabble has subsided into generalities and mutterings. Former Mayor Taggart left for French Lick yesterday and the Democratic machine showed no signs of a demonstration. Neither is there a flag of truce in sight. James L. Keach is going along with his organization and his friends say he cannot be beaten. The newest feature of the Democratic situation is the admitted absence of Mr. Taggart from the firing line. His friends say that he has not been as active in the present controversy as has been supposed and that the assertions of the Keach element that he was planning all the campaign against them was beyond the truth. Taggart's friends say he is merely exercising his privelege of supporting Joseph E. Bell and is inclined to do so only in the most friendly way, but that the irritating innuendos of the Keach men may bring him into the fight with all his strength. The Keach men say that if Taggart is not the head and front of the opposition to them then they have been deceived by facts that they have not the courage to dispute. Both sides seem to be trying to dodge an ugly quarrel, bringing up the memories of 1896, and which each seems equally responsible for introducing into the chairmanship con-

Mr. Taggart, in an interview before he left, said he was not afraid of his record in 1896 and that he had no apology for his political acts. He also said he thought John W. Kern would be forced to become chairman of the city committee.

FOILED PORCH CLIMBERS.

i. E. Keller, of Woodruff Place, Had an Exciting Time.

G. E. Keller, living at No. 32 West drive, in Woodruff Place, had an exciting time last night with two porch climbers. Mr. Keller's presence of mind in covering one of the burglars with a revolver probably saved his home from being robbed.

He was awakened shortly after retiring by hearing some one on his front porch. He went to a window and saw a man standing in front of his house holding a horse, while another man was endeavoring to climb the porch. Mr. Keller got a revolver and went down stairs. Walking out on the porch, he thrust the weapon upward and told the climber to come down. All the time Mr. Keller kept the man covered. When the climber reached the porch his pal, holding the horse, asked: "Has that guy pulled a gun on you?" "Yes," replied the man under cover of Mr. Keller's weapon.

"Well, I've got a gun, too," yelled back the man standing in the road. He pulled his revolver and pointed it toward Mr. Keller. The man who had been on the porch walked from the yard and got into the buggy. While Mr. Keller stood with his revolver pointed at them they drove away.
